I've tried to put the license on several places, and I've even tried to put it in the Admin folder. I've searched everywhere in the program and have not found it. Where does it need to be placed? A: You need to add the license to the Windows Program Files folder. In the Program Files, there is a folder for each program. A systran.exe file should be in the corresponding folder. A: I'm not sure why there is a need for a Licence key to be sent to you, but in any case this is the official way to do it: In your Internet Explorer, download the installation package from their site. Start the Install Wizard and follow the instructions. Open the folder you downloaded the setup file and locate the executable file. Copy the license key there. A: I have actually had a similar problem. Windows 7 - opened microsoft word - opened the.docx file - copied my license code - saved it in word's temporary folder - closed word - opened word again - saved the.docx again - saved it as.zip file. (the next step) - opened zip file and copied code there. (copied it from word's temporary folder) - extracted the.docx into the folder where the.zip file is located. Voila! Q: What's the easiest way to load a dependency file in codeigniter? I have a file, 'custom_files.php', in which I've defined several classes and functions. In one of the classes, I call a function 'load_controller()' from 'custom_files.php'. I don't know how to load custom_files.php in codeigniter. Any ideas? A: Create a library and load it as a standard CI library. File structure should be something like: application/ config/ controllers/ custom_files.php libraries/ custom_files.php Adoption, change, and fading memories: personal information about one's past.
