Martin Markham, who had called himself 'Iron Man' since he was a boy, was only 35 when he passed away in a hospital bed in County Durham. In his spare time he ran marathons and the Iron Man World Championship, which he won three times. He battled for more than 10 years with stomach and bowel cancer. (Image: PA) (Image: PA) He had surgery in 2007 to remove a tumour from his stomach, but a further operation to remove it in 2011 proved unsuccessful. And his illness saw him undergo dozens of operations. In a statement, his friend Charlie Adamson said he was "surrounded by his loving family at this difficult time". The former Northumbria University Student's Union president said: "Martin Markham was a great friend and a very kind, supportive person. "His battle with cancer has been heartbreaking for us all, and Martin always remained positive in the face of such adversity." (Image: North News and Pictures) (Image: North News and Pictures) Mr Markham was born in Newcastle. He took up running in his teens, and in 2001 he set a personal best time of 56.11 minutes to win the club title in the 5K (3.1 mile) Newcastle Indoor Athletics Meet. He took up the sport seriously in 2005, after completing a swimming and athletics coaching course at the University. In 2006 he won the North East Ironman Triathlon Championship in Sunderland, taking the race record by a minute. In 2007 he won the UK's first ever Ironman Triathlon in Swansea, clocking 2.50.02 to take the overall race record. Later that year he competed in the World Ironman
