I have the following code to start a Timed Task: `var e1 = Task.Delay(1000); Task.Delay(0, 1500).ContinueWith(e1, TaskContinuationOptions.OnlyOnRanToCompletion);` I wish to change this to Expressions as the code is more readable and extensible. I don't know how to express the `Task.Delay` and `Task.Delay(0, 1500)` in Expressions because, despite Googling, it does not seem possible to express continuations in Expressions. A: If you're stuck with C#, you can do something like this: `var e1 = Task.Factory.StartNew(() => { var v = new System.Diagnostics.Stopwatch(); v.Start(); DoSomething(); v.Stop(); Console.WriteLine(v.Elapsed); Task.Delay(1500); DoSomething(); v.Restart(); var tm = v.Elapsed; DoSomething(); });` If you want to be able to chain such tasks, you can do something like this: `var e1 = Task.Factory.StartNew(() => DoSomething()); var e2 = e1.ContinueWith(t => Task.Delay(1500), TaskContinuationOptions.OnlyOnRanToCompletion); var e3 = e2.ContinueWith(t => Task.Delay(2000), TaskContinuationOptions.OnlyOnRanToCompletion);` Threatening an Egyptian journalist with imprisonment for writing that the country is in a “state of decadence and corruption”, the attorney general 55cdc1ed1c
