Screenshots: It's all about the navigation in my opinion. If you just want to see where you're going or what you're doing, then Google maps is probably the best fit for you. If you want to use your phone as a GPS then Google maps isn't going to help you here. If you want an app that also helps you find your way around, then maybe it's time you looked at Route Mate. Route Mate is a navigation system for your phone that is specially designed for travelers. Basically, what it does is it lets you input your destination and all the points of interest that you want to visit along your route, and from there it will provide you with a perfectly designed route that allows you to reach your destination easily and safely. Route Mate Description: If you want to know where to go on your next trip, just follow the simple process below to guide you to where you need to go: * Decide on your destination and why you are going * Give your location and phone number * State where you are * Add or remove cities * Add or remove locations and important points of interest * Enable your car * Rate the difficulty of your route (Notch) * Set the number of days you want to travel (Days) * Sort the route by distance * When you are ready to depart, press START This Route Mate application is made specifically to help you have a good trip. It also makes finding all the important places and points of interest easier for you while you are on the move.

Islamic Hijri Calendar: The simple, yet effective Islamic Hijri Calendar app is useful for those interested in understanding the religion, or just those who want to know about holidays, and how they work. There are three main tabs in the app: one for the current day, one for the current month, and one for a list of holidays in the current month. A calendar will appear in the list of holidays, showing the date and time of the holiday, and letting you know which day the holiday falls on. You can also see the date of the next holiday for the current month.

Islamic Hijri Calendar: This simple application helps users better understand the Islamic calendar, showing them holidays during the day. It's not difficult to use, as the writing is fairly easy to read, and the interface is unobtrusive. It will save users the trouble of surfing the web for the dates of Islamic holidays. The app is ideal for the user who wants to better keep track of Islamic holidays, being relatively simple to use, and not difficult to get the hang of.

Lite is a simple app for Android devices that can be used to keep track of Islamic holy days. This program is very simple to use, with the interface being limited to just displaying a calendar with dates, and three icons for accessing the month, year and settings. It is the least feature-rich Islamic calendar app I've found, but in an ideal world it would be even simpler. The program has a lot of potential, but I don't see any real reason to use it over something else out there. A prayer times calculator is included, but it is very basic. The user can define an own date range (even when the year changes), and can use also different event types. The first version of "Simple Islamic Calendar" can be found here: The new version of Simple Islamic Calendar 2.0 is available on Google Play now! It contains various improvements: - Calculation of the prayer times: The user can now select the time of the prayer, the day of the week, the month, and the year - Calculation of Jumu'a: When several Jumu'a timings are available, they are now calculated and displayed - Shows the prayer timings in different styles: The user can choose between "Normal" and "2 Lines" - Many other bugfixes With this project I wanted to develop a simple way to view the Islamic Calendar without having to
