The new “Skill Stick” system is inspired by the aim assist in FIFA 17 and is designed to simulate the movements, trajectory and force generated by the player’s shots and passes. It responds to the player’s movements through the ball and from the controller, accurately calculating the position of the ball at any time, providing an additional level of interaction and control between players. This is a step forward in video game play thanks to the technology that will allow players to make the right decisions in all aspects of the game, not just on the ball. To celebrate the
