Related Content Sunday, September 16, 2011 Using virtual private networks (VPNs) is one of the best ways to protect your privacy online. Because of the rise of mobile devices and the fast internet, most of us have to share many of our information with other people. As your information becomes more and more mobile, one of the best things you can do is to ensure your information stays private. The best way to protect your privacy online is to use a virtual private network (VPN). So what is a VPN? Well first, a VPN is a secure virtual connection that lets you send and receive secure data from one computer to another. It acts like a private door to your data. And while most people think VPNs are just for protecting yourself from hackers, they can also be
