How to solve this type of questions A: It's more a question of how you teach English in India. In India, some examination boards have a fixed marking scheme and the questionnaires are not very different for different boards. Class 10th-12th English questionnaires from some examination boards are given below: With some of these boards it is expected that each question is marked correctly and some questionnaires have questions where incorrect answers are not penalized. Some of these questionnaires are given below: Cpaimb Solutions are graded on a scale ranging from 0-20 marks. Correct answers are assigned 20 marks and incorrect answers are assigned zero marks. Accountancy India Every question of the questionnaire has a question number that can be used to cross-reference multiple answer options. In multiple choice questions, marks are assigned to a range of answer options and not to each answer choice. The percentage can be found in the result sheet for each question. HSE (now IIT Patna) The marks are awarded on a scale of 0 to 20, based on the percentage of correct answers selected. CBSE The Board marks each question and simply gives the percentage of marks. As such the percentage is given as a range. For example 50 – 60 marks. Usually the percentage is given immediately after the question. SSB The marks are awarded on a scale of 0 to 20 marks. Each question is examined and the marks are assigned to each correct and incorrect answer, with no intermediate marking. The percentage is announced immediately. IAS The marks are awarded on a scale of 0 to 100. The question is examined and the marks are assigned to each correct and incorrect answer, with no intermediate marking. This can give a few tricky questions where it is not certain how many marks are being awarded. The IAS is something of an outlier in this regard in that the percentage is assigned at the end of each section rather than immediately after each question. As you can see all the above boards have a range of marks, and so if a question is not marked correctly then the percentage that would be received would be between 0 and 20. For example, if in a given section, a question is not marked with a mark of 20, then the answer would be equal to the percentage obtained. In other words, $20 - x = 0$ where x is the %

back at the Top 101 prospects in baseball and where they stand one year later. From 2013 to '14, we'll take a look at the Top 101 prospects, with the top 10 from each season. 2014 Top 10 1. Noah Syndergaard, RHP Age: 22 Highest Level: Class A+ Noah Syndergaard reached the majors in 2013, but the Mets could have had him in the Majors even earlier. He was ranked as high as No. 5 in the 2012 Top 101 and now the organization will take a look at how his command improved in the Minors. After a great first half, the pitch counts of Syndergaard's arms are up, and he's mixing in more offspeed pitches. Syndergaard's fastball velocity is down a bit this spring, but he has shown he can create serious swings and misses with his unusual delivery. His slider is already a plus pitch, and his changeup improved throughout his first two professional seasons. The fastball has the dominant potential to be an overpowering, plus-plus pitch and the changeup will be a solid above-average pitch. Syndergaard was first on the Mets' Top 101 list at No. 42 and could have been higher given his command, as he had a higher walk rate and opponents made more contact than any other pitcher on the Mets' Top 100. 2. Alex Meyer, LHP Age: 20 Highest Level: Double-A Meyer has
