It was added by DGN on 2012-10-27. It has already received Available 24/7 - 365 days a year Toll Free: (1-866) 242-6007 Cable Licensing Whether you own a house or a business, all citizens and residents have a legal obligation to provide cable television to the public at a minimum rate of $1.50 per month per TV set. In addition, cable and satellite cable operators are required to provide to the public without charge the local public, educational, and governmental access channel. In some areas, cable and satellite operators must make free access to local cable channels available for special events and for public, educational, and governmental access programming. You may have heard the term "cable television channel" or "cable access" channel. These terms have come to mean all the free channels in a TV package or satellite package, such as the Voice of America, C-SPAN, BBC, and the Weather Channel. This is a good approximation of the channels available in the area. Cable television operators are required by law to provide programming on at least 42 channels. However, no one channel is required to provide a local broadcast, as long as at least one channel is available to the public that serves that local area. Guarantee access requires that access channel providers are required to provide the free public access channel as well as programming on at least 6 of the 42 channels. The opportunity for guaranteed access channel to be offered free of charge to the community is a concern for cable subscribers.
